Big Night for the Y. P. U. C.

On Tuesday evening March 22 the Y. P. U. C. was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. McCann. There was a good turnout of young people and it was a rare night of pleasure and profit.

President Ross called the meeting to order and started the program by calling on Mr. Gilbert for a talk. He encouraged youthful independence in thought but warned against young folk disturbing the faith of older people and referred to VanDyke's story of The Mansion as illustrating the fact that even truth may shower disaster upon those unprepared for changes.

Miss Mackie took charge of the social program. As a closing feature of our winter sports an "ice" contest started the fun, Miss Spencer winning the prize. Then paper Easter eggs with six personal questions inscribed thereon, were distributed. They were initiated, collected and distributed again. The answers were made to suit the initials on the egg. And those answers were both wise and otherwise.

A big game hunt was the next event and every body bagged a monkey but Rosemary Lord won the chocolate bar.

But the outstanding event of the season was the "dress parade." Model men in women's clothes set forth the spring fashions and a popular vote declared Allan Phillips and Earl Larson winners.

One would be tampering with truth to say that a "dainty lunch" was served. A "bountiful banquet" would be more appropriate. And the way those boys ate!

Midnight struck the hour of adjournment and with Mrs. McCann and Miss Mary in the centre of the ring, all sang. For they are jolly good fellows.

Regular Meeting P.-T.A.

The regular March meeting of the P.-T. A. was held at the school Monday evening, March 21, with a small representation of members present. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Lewendon, and the business was soon underway.

It was decided that the hot lunches for pupils would be discontinued after the Easter vacation. The meeting also expressed themselves as favorable towards the Annual School Fair and methods of raising money to help the Fair were discussed. Mrs. MacLeod was appointed to investigate into cases where pupils were in need of work books for school.

Owing to the small number present Mr. Gilbert's lecture and the paper by Mr. McCullough were held over for the next meeting.

Buffalo Hill News

The card party and dance held at Buffalo School on Mar. 23rd was quite a success. There were 11 tables of whist players. The prizes for the ladies were won by Mrs. Garitz first, and Mrs. Wm. Marshall, consolation. Mr. G. Smith of Arrowwood

"Clubbing a Husband" Well Patronized and Greatly Enjoyed

Good weather, and a good house provided the background for a good play last Friday, when the Ladies' Guild presented their play, "Clubbing a Husband." And those who attended felt amply repaid for their investment of time and money.

The school was well arranged for both audience and players. The stage scenery showed considerable work and a delicate taste marked the whole arrangement. The work of Mrs. T. T. Williams, the director, is to be highly commended as each player took her particular role most efficiently.

The play opened with Mrs. Newmann weeping because her husband had left her for a whole week and had kissed her only five times. Mrs. Newmann's part was serious, giving little or no place for the light or frivolous, but was carried out true to the character portrayed. Belle, the cook, came in enquiring regarding dinner. This Negro Mammy proved one of the comedians of the cast and through the evening her parts were followed with interest and appreciation. Another racial character was the Irish washer woman, Bridget O'Flanagan. Her dialect was good and one could sense old Ireland in every move. Twenty dollar suits for nineteen, ninety-eight had attracted the bargain hunter, Mrs. Reynolds, who drops in during the confusion. Hastening to unload an armful of parcels so that she may primp before a mirror she sets forth the typical shopvisitor. Mrs. Ashton and her over-grown daughter, Maud, expressed their disappointment at not being met at the train. Immediately the propaganda against the men begins and Maud's irresponsible antics created a lively atmosphere whenever she appeared. The coming of Dr. Jordan made it still worse for the men until a letter from an old sweetheart sent her splashing into the powder box.

Antiquated Grandma Ottaway always following her daughter, Mrs. Ferris, could never cease knitting pa's socks and insisted in putting the wrench into the others' designs while Mrs. Ferris's protest against cards made a real cloak for her jealousy. But jealousy was more deeply imbedded in the heart of Mrs. Whitney who had it in for teachers in particular. Grand opera faded in the career of Mrs. Skylark whose defeated ambition made her a rabid advocate of women's rights. As soon as Mrs. Mary Hudson ceases to be known as Mrs. Harry Hudson, dreams of emancipation fired her soul as it had those of the others. And a mouse heralded the letter which spoiled it all and proved Grandma Ottaway's good sense.

Mr. L. F. Christenson proved a most acceptable chairman. The numbers given by Miss LeBeau, Miss Mackie and Mr. Larson were enjoyed very much. The High School Orchestra provided a suitable introduction to the evening's entertainment and the Gilberts maintained their standing as juvenile musicians. Of course, Miss MacLeod's kiddies contributed a real treat and it is expected that this number will be included with the play if it is taken to out side points.

and James Wyatt received the men's prizes, taking first and consolation respectively. The C. G. I. T. sold ice cream and candy while the Fortune Teller told many fortunes. The Mayor of Arrowwood seemed to get a great kick out of it. We don't know if it was because of the things she was telling him or because she was holding his hand. A large number attended from Arrowwood and enjoyed themselves immensely. After supper dancing occupied those present till 3 a.m.

Shouldice News

The cold weather didn't keep the many friends of Mr. P. Brown home from their usual birthday surprise party on March 16th. Progressive whist was played till midnight, Mr. and Mrs. Mallett having the highest scores. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies present. Mrs. Weber brought a beautiful birthday cake, which she presented to Mr. Brown with sixty-eight burning candles. Farmers to See Picture on Fertilizing March 29

A public meeting of farmers is being arranged to be held in Phillips Hall on Tuesday March 29, at 2 p.m. The meeting is sponsored by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada which will be represented by some of their experts and officials. Moving pictures and slides will be shown exhibiting the most wonderful results accomplished by the use of chemical fertilizer on prairie soils. Ammonium phosphate and triple superphosphate which are being used and whose influences on crop returns, earlier maturity and more even ripening is well displayed in the most striking differences shown on the screen. It is anticipated that these fertilizers are going to be used extensively in Western Canada and it is expected that a large attendance will be present when this most vital question of dollars and cents will be discussed.

An arrangement has also been developed which makes it possible that an ordinary drill may be equipped to sow the commercial fertilizer at the same time as the seed. The meeting will be open to the public and free to everyone.

Further information will be furnished by W. Sutermeister, agent for Arrowwood, Gleichen and Cluny.

Train Service To be Reduced

Changes in the train service on the Blackie-Lomond-Suffield Medicine Hat line is announced by the C. P. R. to take effect April 4. Trains will leave Blackie for Lomond, Wednesday and Friday, and leave Lomond Tuesday and Thursday. No. 665 will leave Medicine Hat for Lomond Mondays and Wednesdays, and the reverse journey will be made by No. 666 Thursdays and Saturdays. These services will replace the present tri-weekly services, but there will be no change in train times at the stations.

Around the Tee

The First Divisional Square Draw Competition finals, between Jack Beagle and Lewendon resulted in a win for Lewendon which completed that event.

The Second Divisional competition was not fully completed. The season closed with J. Mackie, Sr., in the finals, and Bell and Culp in semi-finals. If the last two mentioned rinks had curled their semi-final game, the winner would meet Jock Mackie, Sr., in a final game to decide the final honors of this competition.

We take it for granted the curling is over as the weather is mild, the ice is melting and the rink has been locked up, therefore the "Around the Tee" column will be discontinued after this week.

Button Game

Last Friday night Saunders and the ladies defended the buttons against C. McIrvine's rink, winning 11-2. The 5th end might have easily upset the run of the game if the defending skip had not come through with a good throw through a port on to the shot rock to count one when the challengers were laying six. The defending skip also saved a large count in the 7th by drawing onto the 4 foot circle to count one. The ladies also durlled a good strong game, and the ice was good.

Although the final score was rather one sided it was a real good game. The following is the score for this game by ends.

Guess Perhaps We Are

What has the community paper to offer its readers at this season of the year. Easter is not only a religious term but it has very decided Christian associations. And perhaps some of us cannot go all the way with the advocates of this faith. To be religious is one thing and to be Christian is quite another. And even the religion itself may have little or no appeal. But back of Christian Easter lies pagan rites of ancient origin and practice. Easter slipped so easily into the life of uncivilized Europe because generations back their ancestors had been in the habit of celebrating the return of Spring.

So the farmers may well think of Easter as the time for preparing stock and land and machinery for the spring and summer's work. The crocus and the pussy willow will herald the green pastures and the growing grain. The whole earth takes on her new dress and life gains a renewed interest.

But the clothier may look upon Easter as his harvest. Its a long, long day since the wife had a new Easter bonnet and the old man an Easter suit or even gloves and necktie. Oh, yes, we've had new hats, clothes etc., but this was just as liable to happen at Thanksgiving as at Easter, in fact a little more likely for anything that would see us through an Alberta winter would do for the summer unless some one died or got married and we had to dress accordingly. But the fashion is not altogether outgrown, especially in the cities. And even if they have to get into furs and overshoes on Monday there will be spring hats and overcoats on Sunday.

And more than the clothier's business will be brightening up. All honor to those who have spent niggardly during the winter in order that they may have seed for the spring. That 'things will loosen up in the spring,' has proven true when we were sure that there was nothing to loosen.

And if nature and business take on new life, shall not I? There is the question which is as old as the race itself. Shall I live on in deeds and children only and 'door that opens with a spade' end all else? From one angle an affirmative reply seems the height of conceit. What have we more than this mechanism we work with known as a body? We brought nothing into this world and what do we take out? Any form of demonstration is preposterous and it is hard to accept that which is not conclusive evidence.

But the negative answer involves us in still worse difficulties. As L. P. Jacks expressed it even if we do not crave immortality for ourselves, we cannot think of earth's greatest and dearest as simply passing out of existence. He has made classic the idea the hemlock could not reach the real Socrates. And the belief is not the creation of any civilization or nations or creed. To say that it is to put it in its narrowest and lowest terms—one could not say less but rather much more. And if man is immortal, then there is not a conscious thought or act that is not colored by it.

And where there is it nurtured? in business circles? in social organizations? nor yet in school. To religion and the churches we must look for the culture of this hope. And where do we find it so well expressed as in Christian teaching. After all we are not all Christians.

Measles

Measles is a disease which is highly communicable. In most cases, measles causes no obvious ill effects and for that reason, it is apt to be regarded as being of no real importance, or as presenting no danger. Not a few cases of measles, however, are complicated by pneumonia and other infections with grave results leading to death in such a number of cases that measles must be given serious attention.

During the first year of life, measles is particularly dangerous, the percentage of cases dying being many times in excess of the death rate in the older age groups. Parents should understand very definitely that, under five years of age, and more especially under two years, measles is a much more serious menace to the life of their child than it is after the fifth year. The practical application of this knowledge should lead them to take additional precautions in order to protect their young child, and in the event of his contracting the disease, to care for the case as a serious one.

Cases of measles are often contracted early in life just because reasonable care is not taken. There are still parents who, not knowing how dangerous is, allow their young children to be exposed with the idea that they must have measles some time and, consequently, that the sooner it is over, the better. They disregard entirely the much greater danger of measles contracted in early life as compared with its occurrence in later years.

It is possible to prevent or to render less severe, by means of serum treatment, an attack of measles if it is known that the child has been exposed. Serum is the fluid part of the blood. The person who has recovered from measles has in his blood certain substances which he produced to overcome the disease. If some of this individual's blood is taken and injected into the child who has been exposed to measles, the protection against the disease is transferred to the child.

The best and strongest serum is that which is taken from patients who have recently recovered from measles, and it is called measles convalescent serum. If such serum is not available then the blood of adults is used. Practically every adult has had measles, and so in the blood of most adults, there will be some of the substances which protect against measles.

The serum must be given within five days of exposure if measles is to be prevented. Given on the fifth or sixth day it will likely modify the attack. The protection given is only temporary and does not last for more than a few weeks.

The great value of the serum treatment is to the very young children, during the years when as we have pointed out, measles is so frequently fatal. Also the serum is used to advantage to protect the child who is in good health and in whom an attack of measles would likely be most serious.

Jim London, world heavyweight wrestling champion, on a recent trip into the New Brunswick woods, bagged a black bear, weighing 800 lbs. The animal, wounded by two shots, charged London who dropped his rifle and resorted to a knife with which he killed the bear.

John Deere-Van Brunt
Pony Press Grain Drill
Furnished with Pulverizer-Packer
—or Tongue Truck

Here is the new John Deere-Van Brunt seeding outfit that is making it possible for one man to do a once-over job of plowing, pulverizing, seeding and covering. It is built to do a good seeding job while working directly behind your John Deere three-bottom tractor plow.

The complete outfit consists of the well-known John Deere-Van Brunt Low Down Press Drill and a special pulverizer-packer attachment which runs ahead of the drill, crushing the lumps and removing air spaces just before the seed is deposited.

The pulverizer-packer attachment takes the place of the regular tongue truck on the John Deere-Van Brunt Pony Press Drill. It is either furnished as an extra, or as a part of the complete machine.

You can turn short corners with this outfit; pulverizer and drill always follow plow. There is very little side-draft and no added weight on the plow beams as hitch is made direct to plow hitch instead of to main body of plow. The drill is controlled from the seat of the tractor; the gear throw-out attachment permits the driver to throw the drill in or out of gear by simply pulling the rope attached to it.

The drill is built strong, to give long, dependable service. Has the same Adjustable Patented Gate Force Feeds and other features which identify John Deere-Van Brunt drills and insure satisfaction to the user.

We recommend this outfit when it is advisable to plow and seed at the same time.

Evergreens in the Shelter Belt

Experimental Farms Note

A shelter belt without evergreens is only a partial shelter. Deciduous trees will check wind and accumulate snowdrifts to protect other plants, but without evergreens wind, although checked, will suck through the naked branches, whipping the good wife's wash on the line, chilling the house and stables, and creating the discomfort that a cold or chilly draft produces. A row or two of evergreens will do much to augment the shelter and will, besides, add a pleasing touch of green to a sombre-gray or a cold white landscape. Again, while the evergreens are slow growing on the start they may prove longer of life than certain deciduous species.

In 1919 the Beaverlodge substation planted three dozen native white spruce and subsequently added some of this species obtained from Indian Head, as well as jackpine and Scotch pine from the same source. All these plantings have succeeded with but few casualties, and the native spruce obtained as seedlings ten or twelve inches in height, and have in less than thirteen years attained an average height of fifteen feet except those that were eaten off by rabbits in the winter of 1922-23. They are somewhat shorter. Starting slowly these young spruce accelerated their rate of growth until in certain wet summers they stretched up two or two and one-half feet in one season. During the last two years drier weather together with the competition of adjacent trees in the belt has reduced the annual growth to twelve to fifteen inches.

The Scotch pine have also done very well although some specimens, weakened by overcrowding or exposure, have succumbed to a bark beetle.

This prompts the suggestion that in any belt two or more species of evergreens should be planted so that if one is destroyed by a pest there will still be evergreens left. White spruce and Scotch pine would be the writers first and second choice of evergreens, with jackpine considered as a third.

Views by the

Hon. Robert Weir

When the western boom was on thousands of people were allowed to settle on land to farm that was never suitable for farming, but should have been left for ranching. Many were allowed to grow grain where no one could ever hope to make a living except at mixed farming. I do not refer to the drought area of Southern Saskatchewan. But there was a large area upon which people were allowed to settle that was only fit to raise livestock.

In the second place, after the war, farmers were encouraged to increase livestock holdings to the greatest extent to make up for shortage on world markets but within 12 months the value of livestock had hit rock bottom, and when values dropped farmers were obliged to sacrifice their stock to meet the obligations they had been advised to undertake.

If, in place of forcing farmers to sacrifice their cattle, they had been encouraged to hold them, they could have wiped out their obligation.

Another factor was the custom, originating in boom days, of Westerners borrowings money and undertaking obligations, payments on which depended upon future crops.

No blame is attached to the East or West. It was the natural result of circumstances we could expect to find in any country under similar conditions.

About a dozen ladies enjoyed themselves last Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. J. McCann was hostess to a gathering in honor of her daughter, Mary, who is at home for a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Johnston entertained at two tables of bridge last night. A most enjoyable time was spent by those present. After a delicious lunch all bid their host and hostess good-night.

Last Wednesday evening Miss Willa Leith made a charming hostess to a number of ladies who arrived in a body and took Mrs. Leith unaware. Bridge was played until Willa announced that lunch was to be served. Everybody left in great glee of the fact that they had seen Mrs. Leith over another mile stone.

The largest shipment of Government-approved cockerels for any one breeder or hatcheryman in Canada arrived recently by Canadian Pacific special at Fergus, Ont., from Winnipeg to the order of J. G. Tweddle, of the former city. The birds were selected by government inspectors from the choicest flocks from British Columbia to Nova Scotia. During the last four years Mr. Tweddle has shipped an average of 200,000 chickens to various points between the Atlantic and Pacific.

Competition between truck and railroad service is shown in a new angle by a letter recently to a Reading paper, "Labor." A cattle raiser of Niobrara, Nebraska, tried out both methods, shipping cattle by truck and by railroad. On the railroad there was a shrinkage of 21 pounds for each animal; by truck there was a shrinkage of 98 pounds each. What the raiser saved on freight he much more than lost on the animals shipped by truck, where the value of the shrinkage amounted to $13.14 on each animal. (618)

The WAGIN' TUNG

Vol. 1, No. 32 Arrowwood, Mar. 24, 1932 Items for Thought

An Awful Waste

As we travel through the country we see miles and miles of road that is ruined because the water is not drained off the grades, but allowed to run down the slopes in the wheel tracks, in some instances for a mile. This could have been avoided if those who have the overseeing of the roads would spend a few dollars to have someone see that this is done. Oh where, oh where, is the ratepayers' brains?

There is the old saying that a dollar saved is a dollar earned, and that is just what we are all trying to do these days—"Save the Dollars." There is no better way to save those dollars than by reducing the number of times you pull your farm machinery over your farm. The answer to this is a "Tiller Combine." Once over and its all over, your plowing, discing, and seeding with all weeds that have started growth 100% killed. We call your attention to one of these complete units set up at our location of business in Arrowwood.

Traveller: "Did you find a roll containing $50 under my pillow?"

Pullman porter: "Yes, suh; thank you, suh."

What ever your spring requirements may be we have them—machinery, repairs, lubricating oils, greases, tractor fuels and whatever it may be. If you don't see it or haven't mentioned it, just ask for it.

We are still hauling anything, everything, anywhere, everywhere, any time, and all the time. If you are going to need some coal for the summer place your order early so that you can have it hauled before the spring rush starts.

We would like to call your attention to our Radio Broadcast programme over CFCH next Wednesday morning, March 30 at 8 a.m. Any comment on this programme will be appreciated.
